

HILLIER

A clinical research study for people with atopic dermatitis

The HILLIER Study is being done to learn more about whether a study drug works to improve symptoms for people with moderate to severe atopic dermatitis (AD). The study will also look at how safe the study drug is.

The first treatment period will last for 16 weeks. In this period, half of the participants will receive a placebo (a medication that looks like the study drug, but has no active ingredient). In the second treatment period of the study, which will last for 36 weeks, all participants will receive the study drug.

You or someone you care for may be able to take part if you/they:

- ▲ are 18 years of age or older
- ▲ have been diagnosed with moderate to severe AD
- ▲ have symptoms even with using creams or lotions.

If you take part, you will be in the study for up to 1 year and 3 months and have 16 visits to the study center. The study drug and study assessments will be provided at no cost.
